

January 2016

Motorcycle Live at the NEC is the test of what is happening around the industry and a brief overview of the show is in the Green Book editorial. So why mention it here? Well we keep in touch with manufacturers through the year, but the show gives the opportunity to speak with many of them in one place on one day. Since are reading this it is most likely you are involved in the supply of PCP products in some way, and the main topic of conversation at the show was around the possible values in a couple of years. Explanations of updates and new models all revolved around the potential in the future. Numbers of units to be manufactured and market potential for soaking up those units have been discussed in length. Even before the event enquiries were made about the potential future values of various models to enable finance examples to be placed on bikes on show. There are as we know a lot of new models on the cards, and not just updates but really new things, some adaptations inspired by the Euro 4 introduction and some totally different. Much thought and research has gone into the effect these changes will have on used values in both the long and short term. Although opinion as always varies between sources, at the moment suggestions are that used values for the outgoing models will be re-aligned over the next few months, but historically the changes over a few years tend to wash themselves out as time passes. Also take into consideration that many of the replaced models have not only had significant upgrades, but are virtually different models in everything but name. The increase in prices of the changed models also will be taken into account as normal, but sentiment on replaced models will be sought and actioned over the coming months.
